The King of the Golden River. Jump to navigation Jump to search. The King of the Golden River or The Black Brothers: A Legend of Stiria by John Ruskin was originally written in 1841 for the twelve-year-old Effie (Euphemia) Gray, whom Ruskin later married. The King Of the Golden River is widely regarded as a masterpiece of 19th century stories for children. John Ruskin's The King of the Golden River exemplifies the literary fairy tale, a form which, like the literary ballad, imitates the anonymous products of popular or folk tradition. "The King of the Golden River was written in 1841, at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement, without any idea of publication..." The very young lady was the twelve-year-old Effie Gray and the writer was John Ruskin, ten years her senior. The King Of The Golden River Or The Black Brothers Illustrated by Richard Doyle.
